Our City Comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Your Neighbor Will Get Your Paper This Evening

WE are today handing your neighbors a copy of your paper. Tomorrow a solicitor will call on them and endeavor to enlist them as subscribers.

We do not make a practice of giving your paper to non-subscribers, but we now have so many good things to offer that we are quite sure you would want them to share with you.

We want to tell them of your paper's election to membership in the Associated Press and what this means to Glendale, by putting our city on the world's map through our local news being telegraphed over the Associated Press wires, which cover the world, that we will also continue to have the United Press service, which is second only to the Associated Press as a news agency.

* * *

WE want to tell them that we handle all propositions, not in a narrow way, but as done by metropolitan newspapers. When radio was the craze we inaugurated a broadcasting station at a great expense, while large newspapers hesitated. We handle elections and world series baseball games, just like the large dailies.

Many Glendale boys are being trained in business methods through our plan of selling your papers to them and they reselling them. This plan not only trains them for the future, but pays them better now. They take more interest in service to you—for you are their customers—their stock in trade. It is called the "Little Merchant's Plan," for it makes merchants of our boys.

We want to tell your neighbors who are not yet subscribers of our insurance plan, how the policy provides indemnity for loss of life, limb, sight or time caused through accidental means while traveling in either a private or publicly owned conveyance, the only cost being 50 cents per year as a registration fee.

* * *

WE want to tell them of the way we look out for your interest at all times, through our fight for a reduction of taxes and in many other civic matters of utmost importance to you, giving full support to all your organizations.

We are a Glendale institution, with twenty-four local stockholders, with a staff of citizens, loyal to the core to Glendale. We have grown in circulation in a short two years from nothing to 6000 bona fide subscribers, who want the paper for its merits and are glad to pay for it.

* * *

MAYBE you have told them all of these things, as you should, because it is your paper and you should share in its responsibilities. But have you told them of the small amount asked for it?

Did you tell them what the subscription price is—The Glendale Press, with all of the local news and the most important world news, and the Los Angeles Express with all of the Los Angeles and world news, and all of this for only 65 cents per month, payable to your boy at the end of each month?

SHRINE CLUB TO HOLD BIG CONFERENCE

To Follow Musical Program of Smoker Wednesday Evening

MASONIC HOME PLAN

New Artist in Glendale Will Give Program of Entertainment

Members of the Shrine Club are to have a smoker Wednesday evening, at the Pearl Keller hall, at which a fine musical program will be given. Mrs. Ghrist, wife of Dr. Orrie E. Ghrist, a new artist in Glendale, who received her training abroad, will give piano numbers, and her friend, Miss Rohr, a delightful vocalist, will sing. W. S. Rattray is chairman of the committee having charge of the program.

The burning question with Shriners is permanent quarters. W. E. Evans is chairman of the committee appointed to suggest ways and means of meeting the problem. He has been conferring with officers of Masonic fraternities to see what the sentiment is in regard to a new Masonic Temple large enough to adequately house all the growing orders that desire quarters, including the Shriners.

Mr. Evans will be called upon for a report of his investigations to date and there will be discussion of the matter preliminary to a meeting to be held Friday evening in the office of Fred Deal, manager of the telephone company, to which all the masonic bodies will send representatives. A suggestion which has inspired much discussion is a five-story temple, to contain a much larger auditorium than the present one and smaller halls and club rooms for the various orders and committees, together with banquet hall, club rooms, kitchen, janitors' quarters,etc.

EDUCATORS PROTEST FUND CUT

Legislative Committee of State Teachers Passes Resolutions

SCHOOLS MENACED

Assert Makes no Provisions for Increased Attendance

A meeting adjourned from Saturday, was held by the legislative committee of the California Teachers' association, Southern section, Monday afternoon at the association headquarters in the Loew building, Los Angeles, over which Richardson D. White of this city, committee chairman, presided.

At that session resolutions relative to the school budget prepared by Governor Richardson and now before the state legislature, which had been discussed at the Saturday meeting, were adopted as follows:

Resolutions

Whereas, the public schools of California, in the course of years under the nurturing care of the succeeding governors and legislatures of the state, and under the wise direction of the state board of education and the superintendent of public instruction, have attained the highest national standing in the training of the boys and girls in all the elements recognized as essential and desirable in education; and

Whereas, Governor Friend W. Richardson in his budget, prepared by the state board of control, presented to the legislature, has made inadequate recommendations for the maintenance of the high standard of our splendid public school system, and

Whereas, in case of the State teachers' colleges, formerly state normal schools, the governor's budget:

1. Makes an appropriation 33 1-3 percent less than the actual expense of the present biennial period, and does not allow for any increase in attendance.

2. Eliminates the Junior College department from these institutions.

3. Forces the reduction of the salary scale of Teachers' College instructors to that of elementary school teachers.

4. Abolishes the practical training schools of these institutions as non-essential. This means the utter destruction of professional teacher-training institutions of this state, which will result in a lack of trained teachers for the elementary schools of the state and teachers of special subjects in the high schools. This will mean that more teachers must be imported from outside, and that the boys and girls of the state cannot receive adequate training to become teachers; and

1. Makes wholly inadequate provisions for free state text books despite the fact that the schools have not been properly supplied during the past two years due to an insufficient appropriation by the last legislature. Furthermore, the text books in civics, hygiene and primary geography were published so long ago that they are not only badly worn but out of date.

2. Reduces the state board of education expenditures from $204,000 a biennium to $125,000 a biennium.

3. Cuts the appropriation for traveling expenses for the superintendent of public instruction and his assistants from $9000 a biennium to $5000 a biennium. This sum is used for supervising the schools of the entire state.

4. Makes no provision for the supervision and control by the state superintendent and board of education of the teachers' colleges and special schools which have been placed under their charge.

5. Eliminates the assistant superintendent of public instruction in charge of Americanization, despite the imperative need of this work.

6. Eliminates the entire department of physical education, consisting of the supervisor and two assistants, despite the fact that the recruiting during the World war showed an alarming percentage of physical defects in our young men, and despite the fact that since 1917, under the stimulus of the physical department of the state, the schools have been making rapid progress in remedying these deficiencies.

7. Forces the state board of education to close the Los Angeles office which has been serving the interests of Southern California.

Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the legislative committee of the California Teachers' association, Southern section, representing 9,500 teachers, does hereby urge

1. That Governor Frend W. Richardson and the legislature restore in the budget the sums and amounts which shall be sufficient to maintain the public school system of the state at an undiminished high standard.

2. That hearings be given to all institutions and officers concerned in order that their needs may be adequately known.

3. That local boards of education, chambers of commerce and civic organizations interest themselves most keenly in the proposed budget as it affects our public schools; particularly in view of the conditions that confront the rising generation in a post-war period, and the constantly increasing population of our state.

And be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the governor, to the members of the legislature, parent-teacher associations, boards of education, chambers of commerce, other civic organizations and the daily press.

PRESIDENT TOURS TO VACATION IN FLORIDA

To Take Needed Rest for One Month in the Southland

[By Associated Press]

ON BOARD PRESIDENT HARDING'S TRAIN, NEAR SAVANNAH, Ga., March 6.—Rest and freedom from worrying official duties which President Harding has had for months, today became real. The chief executive with Mrs. Harding and more than a half dozen friends awoke this morning nearly at the border of Florida, where for a month, he will endeavor to find relaxation after a year of steady attention to the international and domestic problems of the nation.

Evidences that the president was looking forward eagerly to a vacation have been apparent to those of his party ever since the departure yesterday at noon from Washington. As the special drew near Ormond, Fla., the first stopping place on the trip, the eagerness grew.

A game of golf was arranged as the first feature of the president's vacation on reaching Ormond about midday.

During a stop at Rocky Mount, N. C., last evening, the president was greeted by several hundred employes of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and their families, and his first questions were as to conditions in the railroad industry.

Rocky Mount was one of the storm centers in last summer's rail strike, and Mr. Harding wanted to know how things were going with the men. They assured him that all now was well.

The president also wanted to know about cotton.

"Have you any boll weevils down here?" he asked.

"You bet we have boll weevils and also corn liquor," spoke up a man in back of the crowd.

"You know you are not supposed to have any of the liquor," the president responded, "and I guess there is not as much of it as there is talk about it."

PLENTY OF THRILLS IN THIRD ALARM

Firemen's Benefit Fills the Glendale Theater With Crowd

LOCAL PROLOGUE

Miss Helen Attel, 13 Year Old Contralto, Wins Encores

By CORINNE ORFF

Thrills, which seem to be the most essential attributes to arouse public interest, were furnished a plenty to those who have attended the showing of "The Third Alarm" at the Glendale theater, and which will continue today and tomorrow. Every foot of the film is filled with interest and brought forth much applause and praise from the audience which crowded the theater at both the Sunday and Monday performances.

Preceding the feature film an atmospheric prologue was presented by the members of the Glendale fire department and Helene Attel, depicting life in an engine house, with the amusement with which the fire laddies entertain themselves. The full cast for this realistic prologue, which ends with the ringing of the "third alarm," includes:

Dan, an old fireman—George H. Blix.

Deacon, a fireman—Dean Williams.

Al, a fireman—Albert Psenner.

Checkers, a fireman—Harry Elliott.

Frog, a mechanic—Al Moniot.

Hoy, a fireman—Jack Goode.

Harmony, a fireman—Jack Wagnon.

Margie, Dan's daughter— Helene Attel.

Lopez, a mascot—By Himself.

Little Miss Attel, who is only thirteen years old, is the possessor of an unusual contralto voice. Several interesting vocal numbers were also given by George Blix, including "Dear Old Pal of Mine," and by the "Fire Laddies' Quartet," the members of which are Goode, Blix, Wagnon and Rockwell. The latter also gave some novelty instrumental numbers, including "Three o'Clock in the Morning," "Indiana," and others at last night's performances.

This prologue will also be repeated at the shows tonight and tomorrow night, and the special children's matinee today. Through the courtesy of William A. Howe, manager of the Glendale theater, the benefit fund of the Glendale fire department will receive a certain percentage of the receipts from the showing of "The Third Alarm." If you like a picture that will hold your interest every minute and which also provides all the thrills of a big fire, do not fail to see "The Third Alarm."

PARK BOARD TO GET STATISTICS OF CONDITIONS

Members of the Park Commission, of which L. T. Rowley has been elected president, met Monday evening to formulate a series of requests which were presented to the city council later. These included a request for statistics concerning the present parks owned by the city—when purchased, amount paid for same, extent, present condition and other historical data for the files of the commission.

The suggestion was made that trees in the city parkways be placed under the park commission that they may be safeguarded now that the forestry department of the city has been abolished.

The swimming pool in Patterson Avenue Park will be under the control of the commission and all other park activities.

CAT CLUB MEETS

The Glendale Cat club met Monday night at the home of the president, Dr. Libbie Ashcroft, 1159 Melrose avenue, at which time two names were accepted for membership and two names proposed, to be voted on at the next meeting. Preparatory plans were also launched for the next cat show, to be held in November. The program Monday night was on the topic of "Kittens." The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Cunningham on Glenwood road.

Refreshments will be served.

The Pacific Electric company made application before the Glendale city council Monday night for permission to extend its bus lines and service in Glendale. After some discussion the matter was, on motion of Councilman Davis, referred to the committee of the whole.

The changes planned by the Pacific Electric are explained in the following communication which was addressed to the council by the railway company:

"Referring to our local bus service operating in the city of Glendale.

"It is our desire to extend this line north on Pacific avenue to Kenneth road on the one hand and east from Broadway and Adams to Verdugo road on the other. Also to operate all busses to the business center of your city, namely, Brand boulevard and Broadway, thereby enabling the patrons of the bus line to travel to and from Brand and Broadway without having to transfer.

"The operation of the line will be as follows:

"One additional bus will be required for this service, maintaining a 30-minute headway from 6 a. m. to 12:30 a. m., and to transfer to and from the electric trains at Brand and Broadway, Cypress and Brand and Broadway and Adams.

"Through service will be operated between Kenneth road and Pacific avenue to Broadway and Verdugo road from 6 a. m. until 7 p. m., after which time the line will be divided at Brand and Broadway, this for the purpose of providing better connection with the electric trains, one bus operating between that point and Pacific and Kenneth every thirty minutes, making direct connection with the electric trains to and from Los Angeles, while two busses will operate between Broadway and Verdugo road every thirty minutes, making connections with the electric trains to and from Los Angeles at Cypress and Brand.

"Fare between any two points on the bus line will be 6 cents, as at present, transfers to and from the electric line at Brand and Broadway, Cypress and Brand and Broadway and Adams.

"Present arrangements are to be maintained in effect relative to the handling and sale of tickets reading between points located on the bus line, and points south of Glendale located on the electric line, excepting that patrons desiring to travel between points located on the bus line north of Burchett street, and south of Glendale on the electric line will be required to pay a fare applying to and from Pacific avenue and North Glendale.

"Should the proposed arrangement as outlined above meet with the approval of your honorable body we will be pleased to place same in operation as soon as necessary tickets, transfers and tariff can be arranged."

This was signed by J. A. Burlingham, manager of the bus service.

STOCK TRAIN HELD UP BY TWO BANDITS

John J. Healey of Nevada Is Shot and Badly Wounded

ESCAPE WITH LOOT

Sensational Holdup Is Staged on S. P. in Glendale

John J. Healey, stockman of Reno, Nevada, who was shot at 8:30 o'clock last night, in a hold-up by two unknown bandits of a Southern Pacific freight at Glendale, was reported as resting easy and being in no immediate danger. The 32-calibre bullet that wounded Healey entered his left thigh, following a course upward and across through the right groin, finally entering the right abdominal cavity. The advisability of an operation will be determined today.

Charles Jackson, conductor of the train, who was beaten over the head with the butt of a revolver, was not seriously injured.

Up to 11 o'clock this morning the bandits were still at large. The dragnet that was thrown around the scene of the crime shortly after its occurrence, was unable to bring to light the identity of the criminals. With the breaking of day, this morning, additional officers were detailed to the case and the efforts to locate the men will continue throughout the day.

Watches and money were taken from Healey, George H. Foley and Charles Jackson, who were in the caboose at the time of the holdup.

The two bandits were riding at the front of the caboose, according to the Glendale police department. When the train crossed the Glendale boundary line the men entered the caboose and demanded that Conductor Jackson, Brakeman Foley and Healey, who was accompanying his shipment of seven cars of cattle to Los Angeles, throw up their hands. Before the men could comply with the demand a number of shots were fired, one bullet hitting Healey, who was escaping through the cupola of the caboose.

Following the robbery the bandits dropped from the train, which was later stopped by Foley and aid summoned. Passing motorists hurried Healey to the Glendale sanitarium. First aid was given to Jackson, after which the train moved on to Los Angeles.

Immediately upon being notified of the holdup, Chief Fraser, Lieutenant Griffin and Sergeant Kerns of the Glendale police force, armed with sawed-off shotguns, hurried to the scene. They searched the neighborhood, but were unable to locate the bandits.

Soon these officials were joined by a number of Los Angeles police, and about thirty officers from the sheriff's office.

The authorities are working on the theory that the bandits knew that Healey, who is a wealthy stockman, was on the train, and believed that by robbing him they would make a "clean-up." It is believed that the robbers boarded the train at Burbank. Neither of the men was masked.

The descriptions given to the police are as follows:

Bandit No. 1—About 25 or 26 years old, very slender, 150 pounds, smooth shaven, gray cap, cravenette overcoat, blue steel revolver, 32 calibre.

Bandit No. 2—About 23 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 140 pounds, smooth shaven, slender build, brown suit, brown hat, carried old single-action revolver.

Bandit No. 1 took some money and a watch from Conductor Jackson and shot Healey.

Bandit No. 2 took money and watch from Foley.

WOULD END ALL PROFIT IN CITY UTILITIES

Constitutional Amendment Awaits Legislative Action

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 6 (A. P.)—Among the proposed constitutional amendments awaiting legislative consideration at Sacramento is one by Assemblyman Dozier of Redding, which would require municipalities and other political subdivisions engaging in business as public utilities, to operate such utilities at cost. That is, the cities and counties that sell power, light, water, street car service, and similar conveniences, would be required to sell such service at the exact amount it cost to produce it.

If it cost a city two cents to run a street car from one terminal of its line to another, the fare would be two cents; if it cost thirteen cents, that would be the fare.

The legislature would be empowered to arrive at a definition of what "cost" really is, and also to lay down rules for ascertaining it.

TUT HAD IMAGE OF HIMSELF IN GRAVE

LUXOR, Egypt, Mar. 6. (A. P.)—Of all the fine things found in the outer room of the disturbed resting place of King Tutankhamen, the finest, from the antiquarian standpoint, is the "Ushabti," a small image of the king himself. That, at least, is the opinion of Lord Carnarvon.

The "Ushabti," or "Answerable," showing the defunct monarch in the guise of Osiris, was customarily placed in royal tombs with an inscription stating that the image was prepared to do any work imposed upon it. Then the tomb was sealed so tightly nobody could get to the the "Ushabti," and request it to do something.

Back in what Tutankhamen may, in his language, have referred to as the good old days of yore, the Pharoah, when he died, was accompanied by a slave, sacrificed during the royal funeral ceremonies. In more "modern" times the slave was allowed to live, and the "Ushabti" was substituted for him. This was done in the case of Tutankhamen.

King Tutankhamen took some of his money with him when he died, but it was gone and his purse, also, when the outer chamber was opened by Howard Carter. The archaeologists were quite sad about this, for they believe there is only one example of such a purse in existence.

BRITISH CREW TO DRINK IN TRAINING

LONDON, Mar. 6.—(A. P.)—College athletes in England do not train so strictly for big events as those in the United States. At Oxford, where the crew is busy every day preparing for the Cambridge race, the oarsmen do not have to shun the delights of drink and tobacco. Cigarettes are discouraged, but not forbidden, and pipes are allowed to glow after meals.

Drinking is all right as long as it is moderate. Last year the students of Oxford paid $7,500 to keep the crews in training at Putney for the last three weeks before the race, and the balance sheet disclosed that the wine bill amounted to $450 and the beer bill to $175.

The coach believes in plenty of food, but the boys in the boat have to forego cream puffs and pastry just as do American athletes.

JOB PAYS LESS THAN FARE TO WORK

DUSSELDORF, Mar. 6. (A. P.)—"You must be making an enormous lot of money," said an American to the head porter of the largest hotel in Dusseldorf, "you spend more than half your time counting great stacks of bills."

The head porter looked up sadly: "Don't joke with me," he admonished. "I am the man who is responsible for the passing of one of the oldest, ironical, sarcastic remarks ever made about jobs."

"What is it, I would like to know?"

"This job isn't worth carfare," the porter replied.

It turned out to be literally true. It cost him fifteen thousand marks a month to go to and from his work on the street cars; the hotel paid him ten thousand marks.

DUTTON IS EXPANDING

Dutton the Home Fynder, has leased the room at the southeast corner of Colorado and Brand boulevard, and will hereafter conduct a real estate and building business at that point. He will retain his present office at the southwest corner of Glendale avenue and Colorado, it is understood.

TITLED HEIRESS IS TO WED JOCKEY

Lady Ursula Grosvenor (On right)

Lady Ursula Grosvenor, daughter of the Duke of Westminster, is shown here with the Countess of Lytton. Lady Ursula, just 24, has a considerable fortune in her own name. From London comes the report that she is soon to become the bride of Jack Anthony, prominent and successful jockey of steeplechase racers.

SUBMARINE MAPS OF SEA BEING COMPILED

SAN DIEGO, March 6 (A. P.)—Submarine mountains and valleys, plains and plateaus, every geographical form, in fact, except perhaps submarine deserts, are being mapped out on the floor of the Pacific from Cordova, Alaska, to Mexico, in hydrographic surveys by the United States government. Later the ocean bed in the vicinity of the Hawaiian islands will also be surveyed.

Three steamers, the Pioneer, the Discoverer and the Guide, are engaged in the work, which will probably not be completed before 1925. For the past four months the Pioneer and the Discoverer have been working along the Southern California coast, but are now enroute to Alaskan waters, via San Francisco. On June 1, they will be joined by the Guide, now at New York having a sounding device installed.

One of the interesting discoveries made by the Pioneer is that surveys made in 1853 of Cortes bank, 90 miles west of here, were so accurate that few changes, if any, will be needed for present day charts. On the other hand, it was found that Bishop rock, a rock and clay projection at the center of the Cortes bank, on which a four-masted ship was wrecked in the early fifties, is approximately one and one-half miles off position.

EMERSON SCHOOL RECITAL PROVES INTERESTING

The students of the Emerson School of Self Expression presented a most interesting program Monday evening which was enjoyed by a large and attentive audience.

The program was in two parts; the first, given by the students, included the following numbers:

1. Duet—Dance of the Amorettes
   Dorothy Kennedy, Gurdon Wattles
2. A Scene at the Butcher Shop
   Bill Rhodes
3. A Busy Boy
   Billy Laar
4. (a)—A Rainy Day.....Williams
   (b)—Evening .....Williams
   Dorothy Kattleman
5. The Learned Scholar
   Tom Cochran
6. So Was I
   Robert Rhodes
7. Duet—Ave Maria.....Behr
   Helen Dotey, Miss Litch
8. The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers
   Vera Mercer
9. What's the Use?
   Mrs. Bayha
10. Scarf Dance.....Chaminade
    Dorothy Kennedy
11. Charge of the Light Brigade
    Elsa Jane
12. A Vassar Graduate Tends the Baby
    Miss Algie
13. Domestic Asides.....Hood
    Mr. Biedermann
14. Melody in F.....Rubinstein
    Gurdon Wattles
15. At the Box Office
    Mrs. George Pierce

The selection by Robert Rhodes was given especially well and Mrs. Pierce, as usual, held the close attention of the audience. She gave as an encore the Swedish boy's essay on "Frogs."

The second part of the recital was devoted to an artist's program which was given by Mr. Earl Meeker, a well-known baritone of Los Angeles. He delighted the audience with his artistic rendering of each song. His beautiful voice, always under perfect control, gave great enjoyment to each listener. He sang in three different languages, giving one selection in Spanish which was of especial interest to the young students who are studying that language in school.

His selections included: A Spanish Song, "Mia Terasita" and "Dio Posenti," from Faust, which were especially pleasing to the audience.

Mr. Meeker is incharge of the voice department at the Emerson School of Self Expression and those who listened to his singing last evening feel that Glendale people are extremely fortunate in being able to study with him.

Listening in on Eve

STRAIGHTENING IT OUT

"Why, hello, Arvilla! What are you doing over here in this out-of-the-day corner? I've been looking everywhere for you," said the good-natured young man, who had hurried into the waiting room of the large department store, "I rather thought you'd be sitting near the center aisle in plain view, so we'd have no trouble seeing each other in the crowd."

"Oh, did you!" icily exclaimed the dark-eyed girl, looking about ten miles beyond him. "I don't know that I cared whether I did see you."

"Is that joke, or what?" asked the good-natured young man, apprehensively.

"I suppose taking me to lunch today is also a joke," said the dark-eyed girl.

"Why should it be a joke? I'm sure I don't know what's come over you today, Arvilla," said the young man.

"That's right; find fault with me! I guess that from now on nothing I do will suit you."

"But why not? What's the trouble?"

"And I know that I should have withdrawn and given you a chance to ask Minette Fento to go with you instead."

"Minette Fenton! Why should I ask Minette to lunch with me? asked the good-natured young man. "Of course, Minette's a lovely girl—"

"Oh, of course, she's perfectly divine!" responded the dark-eyed girl, chin up.

"Well, if you ask me, I'll say she's all right. But what's this all about, anyway! Minette is—"

"Yes, I know what you are going to say. Minette is the sweetest and cunningest and prettiest little dear that you ever met," taking off her coat and gloves.

"For goodness sake, Arvilla! What's the big idea? Put on your coat again and let's go and get something to eat. I can't hang around here all day. I've got to get back to the office."

"Well, don't let me keep you from your lunch, because I'm not going with you after all. Why not get Minette?"

"But I don't want to go to lunch with her. You see, she's—"

"Oh, don't tell me anything more about her," burst from the dark-eyed girl. "How would you like it if I kept talking about Herb Chandler all the time?"

"Herb Chandler!"

"Yes. I saw him in the elevator this morning and he is handsomer than ever. I suppose you think nobody else would look at me except yourself. Of course, it is quite a while since Herb has been over to the house, but I would show just the slightest interest in him now—"

Arvilla! Don't tell me that you really care for him!" protested the good-natured young man, aghast.

"I didn't say I did. Still, he's awfully nice."

"Yes; but Arvilla, you really mustn't allow yourself to be interested in him."

"Is that so! But it's all right for you to fall head over heels in love with Minette."

"Look here! What's all this about Minette?" asked the good-natured young man, getting thoroughly out of patience. "She is a mighty fine girl, but she's—"

"I suppose this has been going on for a long time, but I'm glad my eyes have been opened at last."

"What's been going on a long time?" What are you talking about anyway?"

"Oh, of course, I didn't happen to pass by in the Chase's car last night and see you and Minette walking towards her home! No doubt the nights you come to see me you are wishing yourself over at Minette's."

"Oh, that's it, is it? Now listen," commanded the good-natured young man. "I spent last evening practicing with the glee club, and coming home in the street car I met Minette, who was returning from her married sister's. She lives on my street and I have to pass right by her house on the way to mine, so naturally I walked as far with her as her home. Anyway, she is engaged."

"Engaged! Of all things! Why didn't you tell me so?" the dark-eyed girl demanded.

"I've been trying to tell you for the last half hour," patiently explained the good-natured young man, looking at his watch.

"Imagine Minette being engaged: To whom is she engaged? Do you know?" asked the dark-eyed girl, gradually slipping into her coat again.

"To Herb Chandler."

"Oh!" The dark-eyed girl opened her eyes wide for a moment, staring at the good-natured young man. Then, slipping her arm through his, she smiled distractingly up at him and said: "Let's hurry up and eat. I'm starved."

PURELY PERSONAL

Chas. Bedford, retired captain of the county ferry boat, Tacoma, Washington, is visiting W. J. Fleener of 356 Myrtle. Mr. Bedford is well pleased with Glendale and may invest here.

Miss Elizabeth Hosack and sister, Miss Luella Hosack, of 703 East Harvard street, will move on March 15 to Hermosa Beach, where they will remain for the summer. Preparatory to moving Miss Hosack came across a very interesting paper, a copy of the New York Herald containing news of the assassination of Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Sutton of Minonk, Ill., arrived Sunday morning to visit their son and family, Ralph E. Sutton, 204 East Wilson. No doubt the Suttons will like Glendale and decide to make this their new home.

TEACH ECONOMICS

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

In the interest alike of individual and of social well-being I wish that the fundamental principles of the science of economics were taught in every public school. Failure to teach economics in the schools is, I am convinced, largely responsible for the misery and discontent so much in evidence today.

Also it accounts in large measure for the readiness with which proponents of unsound programs of reform accumulate enthusiastic followers.

That reforms of one kind and another are sorely needed is evident to all. But all, unfortunately, do not possess the knowledge enabling them to discriminate between reforms that would really reform and reforms that would make a bad matter worse because of their conflict with economic laws.

Lacking such knowledge, but keenly appreciative of oppressive conditions, great masses of people give assenting attention to plans put forth, often in all sincerity, by agitators who may themselves know little or nothing of economics. Thus the continuing stability of the nation—its very existence as a nation—is gravely menaced.

What makes the situation doubly serious is the fact that many of the evils which undeniably do call for correction are themselves the products of ignorance of economics.

The economically enlightened would not, for example, clamor and intrigue for special advantages and privileges. They would not indulge in class animosities, but would instead recognize the urgent need for harmonious co-operation by all classes within the social organism.

Thrift, that virtue so often conspicuous by its absence, would become a well-nigh universal fact in the national life. And in place of the present widespread notion that work is something to be evaded at every opportunity, its paramount importance in the scheme of existence would be as generally acknowledged.

The printing press would no longer be accepted—as it now is by many, including some self-styled financiers—as an adequate producer of wealth. The means by which alone wealth may really be produced being better understood, there would follow a greater production of wealth to the benefit of all.

"I have been astonished," said Frederic S. Snyder, in his recent presidential address to the Boston chamber of commerce, "to find even many business men unfamiliar with economic truths. Yet there are few things which more need to be grasped and kept in mind by all members of society."

And the proper place to begin making all familiar with them is the school.

It is in the school, alas! that class cleavages often begin. And it is during the school-going age that ideas often are gained and habits acquired which are distinctly uneconomic.

To combat this, to promote social solidarity, and to augment social wisdom, is most certainly a chief function of our schools. That function, I would insistently repeat, they cannot fully perform until the teaching of economics is included among their activities.

TWO MILLION PER OUTFIT

BERLIN, (United Press). — It costs a couple of million marks to be a dandy in Berlin. A properly dressed young man—spats, cane, flower and all—with a cigar, must be a millionaire a couple of times over before he can say he is just right. A leading harberdasher estimates that with the two million in hand, an average young man of good taste could outfit himself in all pre-war splendor—imported hat, sox and all.

The new play was a failure. After the first act many left the theater; at the end of the second act most of the others started out. A cynical critic, as he rose from his seat, raised a restraining hand.

"Wait!" he commanded loudly, "Women and children first!"

Is it Extravagant?

When a woman's pride demands that her hair, nails and complexion be kept at their very best?

It is the surest economy—in happiness and the regard of one's friends.

Not vanity! But the best of common-sense.

STATE BOOK IS STRONG IN ITS 'CONSTITUTION'

Legislators Receive Two Hundred and Forty Two Pages of it

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 6 (A. P.).—The constitution of the United States and all the amendments occupy 22 pages in a booklet supplied to members of the state legislature. The constitution of the state of California, and all the amendments, occupy 222 pages in the same booklet.

The constitution of the United States has been amended 19 times in 136 years; the constitution of the state of California has been amended 120 times since its adoption 44 years ago.

During the first half of the legislative session for 1923 there was discussion of the propriety of arranging for a constitutional convention to draft a new constitution for submission to the people. A resolution was introduced in the senate, but was later withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Legislators, judges and attorneys here, however, expressed the opinion that within the next few years the people of California will demand at least a rewriting of the present constitution, so that its amendments could be made a part of the new original, and the legal interpretation and teaching of the constitution thereby simplified.

A great many things are now included in the constitution which, in the belief of students of state affairs, would better be controlled by statute; the difference is that the constitution can be altered only by vote of the people, while the legislature can change statutes. Some of the things that are now constitutional, and in many states are statutory, are the fixing of numerous salaries of state officials; the direction of the details of election procedure; the general regulation of corporation rights and disabilities; nearly 100 sections relating to taxation; and rules for the courts covering examination of witnesses, the qualifications and handling of jurors, and numerous other details.

NEW CODE OF STATE STATUTES AUTHORIZED

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 6 (A. P.).—The preparation of a new code of California statutes, begun some months ago by the legislative counsel bureau, has received the informal sanction of the judiciary committees of the state legislature, and a bill has been introduced authorizing the completion of the codes, and their publication for the public convenience.

The bill, introduced in the 1923 legislature by Assemblymen Elksward and Lyons, would direct the legislative counsel to prepare, and the state printer to publish, a complete codification including the 1923 session laws, and to keep them up to date thereafter.

The new codes would be offered for sale at a price approximating cost, and would be distributed without charge to elective officers and members of the legislature.

The codes of California now used by the state officials were prepared in 1915, and a cumulative supplement of session laws has been published biennially since. There are four volumes of the code besides the supplement, and as the latter contains amendments to nearly 3,000 sections, arriving at the latest word on many subjects is a complicated task, beyond the ability of persons not skilled in the use of law books.

AMERICANS MUST WALK, NOW

They have been attracted by the news that the American Aid Society has already provided several hundred with the means of transportation to New York. As a matter of fact the Society has sent back its last destitute. It no longer has the funds to go ahead with the work.

SAM SEELIG TO OPEN BRANCH ON COLORADO

Sam Seelig, who operates a string of grocery stores in and around Los Angeles, has practically completed the purchase of the grocery establishment of M. G. Khodigian and S. Khodigian, near corner of Adams and Colorado, it was learned this morning. The few remaining details are expected to be cleaned up tonight.

After securing possession of this store, Mr. Seelig, it is understood, will conduct the present establishment until the new building that is being erected by M. G. Khodigian on the adjoining property is finished, at which time Mr. Seelig will occupy the large room in that structure. When the transfer is made the stock of the store will be greatly enlarged and many additional lines will be added.

The building that is being erected by Mr. Khodigian is costing about $30,000. It is two story, and is composed entirely of brick. On the main floor there will be two rooms, the one to be occupied by the Seelig grocery and a three-space market. On the second floor there will be eight apartments, all of which will be modern in the extreme.

The establishment of a Seelig grocery at the corner of Adams and Colorado will add greatly to that section as a business center and will stimulate the building alnog Colorado from Glendale avenue to Verdugo road.

FRIENDS SHOWER MISS SCHUYLER AT PHILLIPS'S

Last evening a group of friends who had known the E. L. Schuyler family since they became residents of Glendale gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Phillips to give a kitchen shower in honor of Edith Schuyler, who is soon to become the bride of Herbert Brown. Jolly games were played, and Mrs. L. G. Sherman and Mr. Blake Franklin each gave a number of selections which were very enjoyable.

Answering a loud rap at the front door, two boys were admitted carrying a large clothesbasket of packages addressed to Miss Schuyler, and all entered thoroughly into the spirit of the occasion as the bride-to-be opened the packages and read the sentiments of love and best wishes expressed with the gifts. Each guest had brought an article which will add to the convenience of the new kitchen and the joy of the housewife who works in it. The last gift was a tried and true recipe on "How to Cook a Husband."

The guests were Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Calderwood, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Yard, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. William Justema, Mrs. Harry Gibbs, Mrs. L. G. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sipple, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schuyler, Miss Lois Schuyler, Miss Edith Schuyler, Herbert Brown, Thurston Harshman, Hoyt Schuyler, and the three hosts and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Colson, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Yarick.

OLD SERVANTS OF STATE MAY BE PENSIONED

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 6 (A. P.)—A pension and retirement fund bill that would provide small annuities for old servants of the state, has been introduced in the 1923 legislature by Assemblyman Coombs of Napa. A similar bill was offered two years ago by Mr. Coombs, passed both houses, but was given a pocket veto by Governor Stephens.

The bill, as introduced, would provide retirement pensions for the officers and employes of six state hospitals, the Sonoma State home, and the two state prisons.

A fund would be provided by deductions from salaries, rated on length of service. The largest deduction provided would be $2 a month. Persons who had served the state for twenty-five years would be eligible to the benefits of the fund. The service would not need to be continuous, nor in one institution, but the last five years would have to be continuous. Employes or officers who became disabled after ten years' service might also be admitted to the benefits of the act.

A board of retirement to serve without compensation would administer the fund, and make rules for enforcing the act.

The retirement pay would be the same for all officers and employes. It would be $360 a year.

Provision is made that no employe or officer would be required to pay more than $300 by installments or otherwise, for the upkeep of the fund. That is, when the monthly deductions from an employe's salary had reached a total of $300, the employe would have a "paid up policy" and would at the proper time receive a pension without further payment.

STYLE RULES RADIO

The standardized dress for women does not mean bloomers, men's clothes or uniforms, but the making of women's clothing suitable, serviceable, appropriate, was Miss Edna Avery's assertion by radio from the KFAE station at the State College of Washington recently.

The American business woman, she said, is responsible for many of the present fashions. A dress designer returning from her annual trip to Europe remarked that American business women, for instance, caused the disappearance of the separate collar and cuff sets, fichus and jabots, because these must be immaculate, and after busy hours of work, they have no time to wash, iron and sew in dress adornments that soil with a day's wear.

"Women in business have become sane, sensible, practical," she said. "They do not look less well, less feminine, but they select their clothes to meet the occasion, to stand strain, and those requiring least care and attention. She has to go out in rain or shine six days a week and meet the general public of strangers in shop or office.

"The recognized standard for her is thus the tailor-made suit or one-piece dress with a mannish coat made of materials comfortable as to warmth and dark enough to escape soil. Wearing out old finery at work is deplorably bad taste. Wearing short sleeves and thin, transparent hose on the street or in view of strangers is not a sign of refinement or common sense.

"At seasons when engrossed with the day's routine, the best dressed woman and the cultivated, refined lady will adopt for herself a standardized dress conforming to the following principles: It will be appropriate to the work she has to do, hygienic in fit and texture, durable and hence economical, inconspicuous and hence not extreme in cut or transparency of material, simple in fashion and hence beautiful in line.

"Year by year, the movement to make woman less a slave to her dress has grown. Special garments are made for recreation and we have the 'sports' clothes that in texture, comfort and appropriateness are suitable for motoring, golfing and other exercise. For strenuous tramping and mountain climbing, hunting or fishing, knickerbocker suits are hygienic and expedient, but AT NO TIME should they be worn upon the public thoroughfares or downtown streets of a city, or in any shop, hotel or restaurant. When it is necessary to appear in them there a cloak or long skirted jacket modifies their inappropriate aspect.

"The duties of the housekeeper, active within a warm home, require a simple garment of cool, washable material, easily laundered. Hence there is now in the shops the standardized Bungalow apron and its various modifications. While conforming to certain lines and cut, it has sufficient variety to appeal to the taste of many different women.

"The woman at leisure in her own home or at a gathering of friends may indulge in more of the frivolities of fashion. Her standard of dress changes with her altered environment. More perishable materials, dainty colors and filmy accessories, may be indulged in. Short sleeves and low necks of evening frocks are charming and proper, provided the decollete is not too extreme.

"On these occasions it is the personality of the woman which must be made to shine, and whatever adds in the way of dress to her charm and fascination is her right. But when at work or play she submerges personal accomplishments in the demands of business or the interest of sport.

"Using the above guideposts to proper dress selection no woman need fear 'standardization.'"

Editorials by the People

Glendale, March 3, 1923.

To the Editor,
Glendale Daily Press

Dear Sir: On page 14, Section two of today's (March 3) "Daily Press," column one in the "Story of Ruins," I read, "with each succeeding year people are learning more and more of their origin, and the mighty plan by which they have been advanced to the status of the present. A mind has been created since the days their forbears wandered the hills and forests, living in caves . . . The beginning of the march towards a human level was a process of countless centuries. . . . Ancient as these may be, they tell of centuries far the other side of the million years ago when the owner of the Jersey skull, still dormant mentally, passed away."

I am fully aware that in these days of skepticism it is popular to discredit the record of creation found in the opening chapter of the Bible, as recorded by Moses, "but there came the Son of God to this earth," and "the world was made by Him." St. John 1:10. He said, "Had ye believed Moses ye would have believed Me, for he wrote of Me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe My words?" St. John 5:46-7.

The first thing that Moses wrote was the record of Christ's work in creating the world, and man—not the monkey species that the pseudo science of today is trying so hard to pass out as genuine, but Man, endowed with an intelligence capable of giving names to all animate nature, at sight, Gen. 2:20. Now this was not "centuries before a million years ago," and this same man had a son by the name of Cain, and when his first grandson, Cain's son, was born, Cain built a CITY, not a CAVE.

Now, the chronology of the Bible is so nearly correct that it is practically accepted in all the civilized world, and is attested by the best known authorities in the world. The authenticity given to the Mosaic record of creation by Jesus Christ makes its repudiation a denial of Christ—and is downright heathenism.

Very truly yours,
E. H. REES.

Glendale, Calif.

Editor Glendale Daily Press:

In last Saturday's issue of your valuable paper, under the caption "Teachers Hear of Governor's Budget," you published an interesting report of an address by a Mr. Thurston at a "meeting of Glendale teachers Wednesday afternoon in Glendale high." The speaker is referred to in your report as "executive secretary of the California Teachers' association, Southern section" and the theme of his address is reported to have been the "governor's budget."

Your report of the address is highly interesting, notwithstanding the fact that it does not disclose any definite statement by the speaker of the purpose of his address, therefore the reader is left to draw his own conclusions concerning it.

In view of the fact that other meetings and addresses of a like or similar nature have been and are still being reported from other cities and communities, the inference may be legitimately drawn that the "meeting" in Glendale was part of a definitely conceived plan on the part of what the governor has termed the political educators—or educator politicians—of the state, to discredit Governor Richardson and defeat his purpose to keep faith with the people of California by putting into effect the promises he made to the republican party in his campaign for the nomination and his pledges to all the electors in the campaign for election. There can be but one opinion among good citizens regarding the courage and good faith of the governor in his determination to redeem his pledges, and I believe all citizens not tainted with selfish or ulterior motives will gladly accord him every good wish in his effort to eliminate waste of public funds and curtail extravagant expenditures of the people's money regardless of the individuals or organizations affected thereby. The fact that the propaganda now under full head of steam to hamper the governor in the huge task which he has undertaken and is carrying out in the interest of all the people, is camouflaged as a movement to protect the public schools and promoted by a coterie of educator politicians, makes it even more reprehensible than it would be if it came from sources making less claim to exalted theories of loyalty, patriotism and good citizenship. It behooves the public school teachers and all citizens and organizations unselfishly interested in the welfare of our public schools not to be drawn into the controversy started by the state superintendent of education before the ink on the "governor's budget" was dry, without careful consideration of the whole subject of putting into effect the budget system of controlling public expenditures. This system is now as much a part of the fundamental law of the state as is that part of it which Mr. Thurston insidiously suggested would have been impaired by the "governor's budget" if it had not been so buttressed. I refer here to Mr. Thurston's reported statement that "this cut will not affect the state apportionment for the various elementary and high school districts FOR THE REASON that this apportionment is provided for in the constitution of the state, and THEREFORE CAN NOT BE CUT." (The capitals are all mine).

Mr. Thurston also is reported by you to have made the statement that California has "an actual balance in its treasury and a possible addition to that balance of $5,000,000 now tied up in litigation." The governor has recently announced that the most drastic curtailing of public expenditures between now and the close of the present fiscal year must be resorted to in order to avoid creating a deficiency. It is safe to assume even if the statement by Mr. Thurston is important to his propaganda, that Governor Richardson is quite as well posted on the condition of the state treasury as is Mr. Thurston. The governor was treasurer of the state for a number of years and is now the chief executive charged with the primary responsibility of keeping receipts and disbursements safely balanced to avoid red ink entries in the public ledger account. However, the important thing to be noted in the statement of Mr. Thurston regarding fiscal affairs is the fact that he has given us another public exhibition of the propensity of not a few of our public school servants to assume that they are primarily charged with authority in matters relating solely to the fiscal affairs of our public school systems. Too many have lost sight of the fact that they are hired as educators and not as promoters—that they, like other public officials, are servants and not masters.

In conclusion permit me to suggest that if the issue be joined as to whether the governor's program or the program of the obstructionists be carried through, there can be but one result—the governor will win because the great mass of the people will support an honest, intelligent and courageous executive. That was demonstrated many times in the career of Theodore Roosevelt. If the educator-politicians insist upon injecting the school teachers and school organizations into this contest nothing but evil to the public schools can result.

Thanking you for the courtesy of publishing this communication—if you see fit to do so—I am,

Yours for a better spirit in this period of readjustment and for the budget system of control in the expenditure of public moneys in Glendale and Sacramento as well as in far away Washington in the District of Columbia.

R. S. PERSON.

Glendale, March 5, 1923.

Old Brown had had a terrible morning. He could not walk, and had engaged a man to push him about in an invalid's chair.

Twice they had nearly been crushed under a streetcar; once the invalid-chair man had nearly dropped his charge into a river.

They had now reached the top of a very high hill, and there they halted.

At first old Brown welcomed the halt. After his perilous journey it came as a welcome rest to stand safe and still. But at last he began to get restless.

"What are you stopping here for?" he asked nervously.

"It's all right, boss," the attendant replied unconcernedly. "I'm only waiting for my pal, with another old gent, cos we're a-going to have a race down the hill on a little bet."

After a woman has been married about so long she ceases to pay attention to rumors about men neglecting their wives.

POWER OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE IS SUBJECT

Rev. D. M. Barr, the pastor of the Orthodox Methodist church south, chose for his text Sunday Revelations 5:10, "And thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth." His subject was, "The Power of the Christian Life," upon which he spoke as follows:

"Christ is the source of this power, and unto Him we must look for and ask for power to be given us as Christians that as Christians we may reign on the earth.

"Our former messages brought out the fact that Abraham's seed, or his faith handed down, should bless all nations; then Jesus came, of the seed of Abraham and began to commission that the Gospel be preached until all the world and the scripture taught us to believe that 'Jesus hath power to save unto the uttermost all who would come to Him.' Then was manifested this power in the forgiveness of the sins of many—Jesus shed from His body both water and blood, that we might have remission of sins. He died on Calvary that we might be saved. Then he goes to the Father's right hand, and sends the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost; as He said to His apostles: "And when the Holy Ghost has come upon you ye shall be endued with power from on high.'

"Jesus, the source of our power, therefore proved His power to the people of the earth, when He caused the winds to calm and the waves to cease their roaring and mad rush. He also showed His power in the resurrection and ascension, all of which is more evidence of His power to rule and reign in the human heart, overcoming the powers of darkness in main, likewise ruling and overcoming the powers of darkness in this world.

"Christianity rightly taught and given its rightful place in the earth, in accord with our text will be the governing and ruling power, not only in individual lives but in the home, the social and political life of the community, county, state and nation.

"Luther broke with Rome, teaching that faith was essential to salvation, giving Protestants a sweeping influence and a dynamic power that has been felt the world around and, though an attempt was made to still his voice, to check his activities, he, like a man of God, stood in the courts with 5,000 witnesses about him to cheer him and would not deny the faith, would not disconnect with the power house of Heaven.

"John Knox had great faith in God, and believing that he must confide in Heaven for this power, verily shook Scotland praying, 'God, give me Scotland or I die.'

"John Wesley had his heart strangely warmed from Heaven and with that fire burning in his breast, was convinced that we must be holy as our Father in Heaven is holy. 'Without holiness no man shall see the Lord.' That faith has shaken the nations, and is still shaking them to this day and civil governments have felt its very power. Chrstianity has made the home a sacred institution, and the pews in our churches a place of prayer, with songs of praise on our lips.

"Christianity has made our schools a place where reverence has become the keynote. We should have the Bible as one of the studies, that our young life might be familiar with the history of God's early dealings with man and the ethics that His son, Jesus Christ taught, and how the Apostles reverenced Him as the Saviour of the world. Now through the churches of today, humanity is seeing whether or not we reverence the Christ, and whether we believe He has power in man, and in the earth."

The pastor announced at the close the revival — beginning March 27, 7:30 p. m., he requesting that everybody hear the great Bible scholar at the church from the 12th of March for two weeks.

'RACING HEARTS' OPENS TODAY AT T. D. & L.

Roscoe Sarles' famous racing automobile, one of the two prized possessions of the late world-famous automobile racing driver, plays an important role in "Racing Hearts," a Paramount picture starring Agnes Ayres, which comes to the T., D. & L. Theatre for two days beginning today.

This car, capable of a speed of more than 110 miles an hour, was one of a team of two bwned by Sarles. The great driver drove it in many races, alternating with the machine in which he met his death during the recent races at Kansas City, Mo.

In the racing scenes of "Racing Hearts," Miss Ayres, in a high-powered car, speeds along at the rate of over 100 miles an hour and is closely contested by Richard Dix, leading man in the picture, who drives the Sarles Special.

The Bond Market Wanders Aimlessly

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—(A. P.)—Bond prices continued to drift in a seemingly aimless fashion today. Lyons 6s made an early gain of 1 1-4 points, but the Denmark issues yielded slightly. U. S. government bonds moved irregularly within a radius of 12 cents on $100.

Except for a gain of 1 1-8 points in Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s and losses of a point each in Chesapeake & Ohio general 4 1-2s and Atchison adjustment 4s, stamped, the changes in the railroad group were small and unimportant. A break of 2 1-2 points in United Railway Inv. 5s in sympathy with the lower stock prices, was the only feature of the industrial group.

Grandma was proud of her geraniums, but there came a day when she found them all pulled up.

"Willie," she said to her little grandson, "who pulled up my geraniums?"

"I don't know," the young man replied: "I think it was Margery, grandma."

"Come now, Willie!" grandpa chipped in. "Be a man. Own up and say 'I did.'"

"That's right, grandma," said Willie. "Grandpa did!"

Mother was entertaining callers in the parlor when her little party was interrupted.

"Maw!" shrieked little Billy, "Come quick." "Why, my son," said the mother, "what's the matter?" "Henry went fishin', mother," returned Billy, "and he took your appendix out of the jar for bait."

The rules were strict at the college.

Accordingly, when Mr. Foster arrived to take Miss Joy out in his car, it was with very mixed feelings that she mentioned the matter to the principal.

"You know, Miss Joy," said that personage, "I only allow the students to go out with their fiances. Are you engaged to Mr. Foster?"

"N—no," was the reply, "but if you will let me go, I shall be by the time we get back!"

Some men are too intellectual to be intelligent.

RUSSIAN SHOPS PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

MOSCOW, Mar. 5.(A. P.)—High rentals exacted by the government, and high taxes imposed upon business brought about the closing of scores of shops all over Russia during the month of January. Private merchants who last summer wore smiles of contentment and felt that the era of free trade meant high profits and a return to the conditions before the war, are now lugubriously wondering how to make ends meet.

In some localities of Moscow, particularly in the principal shopping streets, the rentals imposed for 1923 are three times the gold value of before the war. One dealer in agricultural implements closed his shop when he found that the space occupied by one plough during one month cost more in ground rental than the value of the plough.

Protests against this situation have been made by a number of private merchants, but the openly announced policy of the government which contemplates the favoring of government trusts in order to drive private compatriots out of the market, apparently is being enforced.

MORE COLOR IN DRESS

Spring styles will be "a riot of colors" said Miss Edna Avery of the State College of Washington home economic faculty over the radio broadcaster recently, in the first of a series of talks on new ideas in clothes.

Navy blue has gone out, she says, except for the most practical uses. Black will be better than blue for the early spring things, followed by browns and tans and then all the gayest colors of the rainbow, as an aftermath to Easter. Grays and tans will be worn under all sorts of names: a popular gray, for instance, will be known as "kit fox." Then there will be Lanvanne green, fog, robin's egg blue, meadow lark, cocoa, cinnamon, and daffodil.

"Color? Yes, but no strong contrasts. See that the hues are carefully blended. There are no new trimmings, for trimmings are entirely 'cut.' To be really dressy, a gown must be self-trimmed, with straps, panels, kerchief drapes, new folds in stair formation (the old cascade idea under a new name.)

"One late model in gray organdie with ankle length full skirt shows four gray velvet bands several inches wide between the waist and hem. Rows of pin tucks or dainty cordings will adorn bodies and skirts and give them that much desired emphasis of self-decoration. It is a satisfaction to remember that this style of trimming is inexpensive.

"Cabachons—the new name for rosettes or round bunch trimmings—made from self-tone ribbons or the material of the dress itself caught up in a draped fold, will continue in fashion, hard pressed by the lovely metal buckles and clasps that are trying to nose their way into popularity. These, by the way, are not so expensive as one might imagine. If you buy one, do not discard it when the fashion passes, for it will return in the course of time.

"The lace berthas worn some twenty years ago are born again, and can be quickly attached to a round or batteau neck line. These are of lace, fulled or plain, deep or shallow. The stores show many shapes and styles, but any woman can copy one she fancies, with little difficulty, from bits of lace she may have on hand.

"Since it is not the trimming that makes the frock this year, you must look to the line, for that is what counts. See to it that the fronts and backs as well as the sides of your new grown hang perfectly straight. The waist has all but disappeared in this new outline of the figure. But not quite; for a very loose tie or girdle may mark its position somewhere between its old place and the hips. But this, like prices, is scheduled to rise."

INOCULATING THE SOIL

"Just why nitrogen is so closely associated with the phenomena we call life, is not known," says Bacteriologist Paul W. Allen, whose new bulletin on "Inoculation in the Growing of Legumes," No. 122, has just been published by the State College of Washington agricultural experiment station.

"That it is essential is known by almost every animal feeder and every plant grower," he continues. "Were there no other way to return nitrogen removed by plants or by leaching to the soil than by purchase of fertilizers, the older countries would have been nearly depopulated centuries ago for lack of food.

"However, nature has made provision insuring the indefinite maintenance of man, animals and plants on earth. By nature's method, fields uncropped become richer, although very slowly, while fields cropped with legumes, if properly handled, become richer rapidly. This applies especially to fields of average fertility.

"While it took New England farmers only a few years to remove all fertility from much of the soil, their soil originally grew large crops. Eastern farmers of the past generation enjoyed telling of the wonderful crops which they grew for a few years on newly cleared forest lands. Much of this same land has long since been considered worthless and returned to brush.

While this is not likely to be the history of the deeper and better soils of the West, the general principles of soil depletion are operating here just the same as they did there. The better soils here will take much longer time for depletion, and the conditions for stopping exhaustion of soils are much more favorable than in many of the older sections."

OILING LEAF ROLLER TROUBLES

Spring plans for control of orchard leaf roller troubles were talked over Wednesday night by Radio KFAE. State College of Washington, Entomologist Anthony Spuler speaking, briefly, as follows:

"Because of the seclusive habits of this pest, arsenic sprays have not been successful, but over 90% of the eggs will be killed by a good miscible oil. Therefore, it seems an oil spray must be regarded as a primary spray for this insect.

"With the hatching period of the eggs but a short way off, immediate preparations should be made by the fruit grower to have on hand enough oil when spraying time arrives. Not all oils are alike. There are a number of brands on the market, some very good, others with almost no value in killing leaf roller."

Experiments with the oils this year show that such oils as Dormoil and Spramulsion killed 97% of the leaf roller eggs. Dormant Soluble oil also gave excellent results. Results were not so encouraging with Ortho crude, orange and distillate oils, Calox, Radium oil and Spurgeon's Dormant spray. All were used in strengths of 8 to 10 gallons a 100.

TO CLEAN WALL PAPER

Papered walls are most conveniently cleaned with a home-made brush made of strips of cheesecloth, each one an inch and a half wide and eight inches long, attached to a long light handle. It should be used about twice a month.

MRS. WINTER EXPLAINS $250,000 OFFER

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter.

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the American Federation of Women's Clubs, who startled Congress by asserting she had been offered $250 to help pass a bill through Congress, later explained, at her home in Minneapolis, Minn., that the letter which contained the offer did not refer specifically to lobbying in Washington, but rather to using the influence of the federation "to put over a certain big affair through the women voters of the country."

EXPLAINING THE WARM PACK

The little sick baby was very restless.

"I think," said the doctor, "we will put him in a warm pack."

To the child's young and inexperienced parents a "pack" sounded so unkind. But a few minutes later, when they saw the instant relaxation of the tense little body enveloped in the warm, steaming blanket, they understood.

More and more warm packs are being used under a doctor's direction to soothe the fretfulness of sick children. Unlike the pack of a few years ago, which signified extreme illness and emergency, the warm pack of today is a restful, kindly ministration.

One simply fills a pail, the bathtub or the dishpan with warm water. Quite warm, in fact hot; but not too hot to be borne comfortably by the hands of the child's mother or the nurse.

The room must be warm when the baby is stripped, placed on a warm, dry little blanket and covered with it while the pack is being wrung out of the water.

A small blanket usually answers the purpose of a pack. It should be rolled from each side toward the middle, then doubled over and wrung from the warm water.

Placed beside the baby on the warm dry blanket, it is the work of an instant to put the baby in the center of the two rolls. By unrolling them quickly toward the edge the child is enveloped in the warm damp blanket in one gesture.

The blanket is drawn closely under his chin and the small form, with arms enfolded, looks not unlike a diminutive mummy. Then the warm, dry blanket is drawn over the damp one, the baby is placed comfortably in bed, with a well-covered warm water bottle near his feet, and he rests.

Magically a warm pack seems to soothe jangled nerves and relax tense muscles.

Usually the baby is allowed to remain in a warm pack for thirty minutes. At the end of this time, the room being warm and free from drafts, the baby is taken out of the pack, covered with a warm, dry blanket and patted dry. His nightgown is put on and he is placed between warm blankets. Usually he will sleep for several hours after a warm pack if it has been carefully given. The thing to do is to move quickly, avoid chilling the baby, avoid quick, jerky movements which terrify every sick child, and allow the child to rest while he is in the pack.

Assure yourself that he is properly wrapped in it, then leave him alone. This does not mean alone literally. A sick child should never be left alone for a moment, particularly when a treatment of any kind is being given.

In these days when every mother wants to know the "why" as well as the "how" in case the little child should become ill suddenly, it is well to know HOW such things as warm packs are given, even if one should never need to give one.

Such treatments should never be undertaken by a mother without the doctor's consent or instruction. But it is much better to know HOW to give a prescribed treatment than to stand helplessly in the middle of the kitchen floor when a warm pack is mentioned and wonder what it is and why.

Not that anybody ever knew a mother who could not meet an emergency when the need was that of her sick child. For every woman has mother-magic in her fingertips when her child is ill.

He was telling one of his wonderful traveler's tales and the little company in the club smoking room were duly impressed.

He realized that he was gripping 'em, by their eager, strained faces, and continued with more than his usual swagger:

"It was the loneliest part of Africa—the silence was painful, no human voice had ever been heard there—no human foot had trodden that swampy soil. The vast solitudes seemed void of life."

"How do you know that?" some one ventured to ask.

"Well," the intrepid one replied, "I hung my watch on a tree and lay down to sleep. When I awoke I forgot all about the watch and continued my long and lonely march. Two years later I visited the same spot and there was that watch—still hanging on the tree."

Silence reigned for one tense, brief moment.

Then a mild-looking little man in a corner leaned forward and quietly asked:

"And was it going?"

Jock and Donald sat smoking their pipes on the old back porch, indulging in reminiscent stories of their past. When these were exhausted, old Jock stood up, straightened out his stiff limbs and rather wearily sat down again.

"There's no muckle pleasure in smokin', Donald," he said. "Hoo dae ye make that oot?" replied the other in surprise. "Weel," said Jock, "yr see, if ye're smokin' yer ain 'bacca, ye're thinkin' o' the awfu' expense, an' if ye're smokin' some ither body's yer pipe's ramm't sae tight it winna draw."

An old Negro was taken ill and called in a doctor of his own race. After a time, as there were no signs of improvement, he asked for a white doctor.

Soon after arriving the doctor felt the old man's pulse and then examined his tongue.

"Did your other doctor take your temperature?" he asked.

"I don't know, boss," replied the ailing Negro. "I hain't missed nothing but my watch yet."

Will your paint withstand next summer's sun and heat?

IT'S time to start thinking about this year's coat of paint. The sun will soon be getting in its work. Is your property protected against those blistering, burning rays? Or will rot and decay be able to creep through the blisters, cracks and bare spots?

Come to us for Patton's Sun-Proof Paint. It seals the surface with a hardy, long-wearing film that resists the most vicious attacks of the elements. It is exceedingly elastic—expands and contracts as the weather dictates. No cracking, blistering, peeling or flaking off. Wears wonderfully well and covers an unusually large surface per gallon.

Truths in Epigram

To be unchangeable is the quality of the idiot; to change too easily belongs to children and lunatics. — F. Marion Crawford.

Our first mistake is that the circumstance gives the joy which we give to the circumstance.—Emerson.

There is only one stimulant that never fails and yet never intoxicates—Duty.—G. P. Prentice.

RESPECTING THE TOMB

The associated undertakers of Greater New York have issued a protest against the violation of the tomb of Pharoah Tutankhamen. The mummies in museums should not be there, declared the chairman of the organization. It was the unanimous opinion that the dead should be honored 3000 years after burial, as at any other time.

Thus the solemn brotherhood has raised a nice question. To respect the dead is instinctive. To lay them away with ceremony has been the practice for countless ages. What lapse of years is essential to the removing of the obligation of deference never has been settled. Civilization has assumed the right to delve into the ancient sepulchre. Even the Indian mounds of this country have not been spared. The thirst for knowledge never is appeased. If there is information sealed up in the burial place, soon or late it will be brought to light. The sentiment opposed to this course is quite helpless to prevent.

In modern communities there are places set apart as cemeteries. For several generations such a spot may be kept intact. The larger and older cities, however, have found that material expansion demand the space allotted to the peoples gone before. Either the bodies are removed, the form of moving what may be only a handful of dust, being carried out, or the tide of business and social activity sweeps across the neglected graves. The world after all is for the living. Deference to the mere shell, left by a soul departed, is due in great measure to consideration for the friends. It is extended out of regard for the feelings of sorrowing survivors. The body is resolved to its elements. Soon there is no body. Those who have mourned, go their ways, and even the grave in which the body once rested is unvisited and memory as to its origin recalled only to alien eyes gazing at a mossy stone.

What purpose is served by delegating to insensate bodies for all time, permanent tenency of a portion of the earth of which they soon must become a part? Were such policy to be adopted universally, the time when the globe would become one vast cemetery might be mathematically figured.

PROSPERITY INCREASING

Government investigations lead to the conclusion that the United States is to have an era of prosperity, and that already this has begun. Similar conclusions had been reached by private individuals, due to the circumstance that they had been keeping their eyes open.

In southern California conditions have been unusual. This fact made the region famous as the white spot on the financial map. Whatever the explanation, the truth is that southern California never shared in the slump that followed the initial burst of activity just after the war. It was prosperous then, is now, and so far as the veil of the future may be pierced, ever shall be. With the rest of the country, California had to pause during the war, and certain activities came to a standstill. But when military inhibitions were removed, this section went ahead just as though it had not lost a step. It was surprised that other sections did not keep pace with it. California continues to advance, but no longer in solitary glory. Instead of marching alone, it heads a procession.

With a land so abundantly productive as the United States; with such latent resources to be developed; with inventive genius so quickened, with capital so plentiful and employment sure, there is no reason why the United States should not be prosperous. The indications of surprise that greet recognition of the presence of prosperity are superfluous.

The most marked growth industrially, naturally is to be looked for on the Pacific side. That is to say, capital and commercial enterprise have at last been made aware of the opportunities awaiting here. But that there is money to invest, argues prosperity elsewhere as well as in this singularly favored region.

Apparently the pessimist has grown tired or ashamed of his wailing. Maybe he even has turned optimist. Anyhow, there is nothing for him to croak about and his silence is like a balm.

THE WORLD'S HOPE

A devotee of music recently affirmed that the world was to be saved through the agency of song. It apparently was his idea that the spirit that finds expression in community singing would dominate the emotions of the world, could it but cause the nations of the earth to sing in unison. Probably the theory is flawless. While soldiers do march to battle keeping step with the band, military music is not looked upon as a specific for national ill-temper. It is no softening influence. Its tendency is to arouse emotions that lead to earnestness in fighting. This fact does not in any manner impair the theory of the gentleman quoted. He was speaking of singing, as a community, its members gathered in pacific mood, sing words familiar to all, conveying tender or uplifting sentiment.

Only a few days ago there was occasion to mention the community sing as enacted every Sunday at Alhambra. Such a wholesome contact of neighbors has fine effect. It produces unity, and arouses friendly interests, causing the individual impulse to act in concert with the collective impulse, to which it contributes its portion of force. If the whole world were singing in similar fashion there would be no war, that is certain.

To the master minds of the musical realm great possibilities are open. If only they can make songs of such charm and appeal as to engage the admiration of the world, the war-god will be scared off the map by a burst of universal harmony.

CURING THE LIMPS

The defeated officeholder often is termed a "lame duck." Perhaps the characterization is lacking in sympathy. Nevertheless it is expressive, and usage has established it firmly. When a man has been faithful to his party, and the voters have made known their desire that he rest from his labors awhile, there seems to be tradition that he shall be snatched up and dropped into a better berth than that which he surrendered. This is not a reproach to one party more than to another. The policy prevails with any and all of them. The theory seems to be that the lame duck is not limping through lack of merit. On the other hand, he is regarded as having higher merit than his constituents were able to appreciate. Indeed, this may be the case.

Mondell as leader in the house was not reckoned to be a record-breaker for efficiency. Truth to tell, the country was rather relieved to learn that the people in his district had voted for a change. Mondell as congressman got $7500. He has been made director of the war finance corporation where the salary is $12,000. His defeat appears to have been a political rebuke that missed fire. Others are having similar exeriences. Townsend, Kellogg, Pomerene, Poindexter, New, all told by their former supporters to enjoy private life for a time, pluck a succulent plum apiece, continue in the limelight, and draw more pay.

All this is said with no intent at adverse criticism. It is a mere recital of the way in which things happen. There is a ready panacea for duck-lameness.

Recently several film actors have been reported as having been badly burned through their devotion to realism. Some were knocked endwise the other day by a runaway team. The latest narrow escape at this writing was that of a young woman whom somebody wickedly and wantonly sought to chloroform. It is a cold day when an edible movie queen is not bitten by a lion or something. Altogether the press agent leads a busy life.

Many have wondered what they would do were they suddenly to come into possession of a million dollars. A policeman has just fallen heir to such a sum. Nobody knows what he will do, but it is a safe guess that he does not continue long to buck traffic at a city crossing.

THE Y. M. C. A.

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The Young Men's Christian Association was brought into public prominence by the Great War in which it was found to be of practical use by the army.

Dr. Frank Crane

This association has undergone a peculiar transformation. This transformation has not only been within itself, but in the opinion of people in general. It is the same sort of transformation that is taking place in the church. That is to say, the emphasis has been transferred from propaganda to service.

The Y. M. C. A. is not an institution whose main purpose is to increase the membership of Protestant churches. Its principal object is to make better and more efficient men and whatever religion it teaches is only used as an instrument for that purpose.

The seventieth annual report of the New York City Y. M. C. A. contains some interesting information.

Fifty thousand young men and boys in New York City receive as members of this organization, in thirty-three centers, inspiration and training for better citizenship.

Few know that 50,000 other young men and boys outside the membership are reached annually with a constructive program. The figures are amazing.

Eleven gymnasiums supplemented by hand ball courts, shower baths and swimming pools are helping 14,843 youths to strength and physical manhood; 10,597 young men train their minds in 379 classes and in ninety-two different branches of study; 4183 social events furnish wholesome fellowship during the year for 447,335 men; 4553 religious meetings attracted 880,389 attendants; 2202 dormitory beds and fourteen restaurants give no melike shelter and clean food in congenial environment; and employment was found for 7660.

And then the boys. Three thousand boys were served in eight branches of this organization having special club facilities. One branch ministers to 10,000 employed boys in the financial district. Five camps provide wholesome life for 600 boys.

One entire building is devoted to merchant seamen, another to the service of colored men, five to railroad men, one to French-speaking men, five to students, two to enlisted men, and one to homeless men.

This seems to me to be the most significant effort by, for and of young men to increase their worth and welfare. That it is called Christian should be nothing against it. Any competition in this direction from Mohammedans or Buddhists would be welcome and doubtless helpful.

One of the best features of this organization is that of the $2,500,000 which it costs to operate this work, 87 per cent is paid for by the men who receive the benefit. This is a pretty good evidence that young men are being offered something that they want and not having something thrust upon them which they do not want.

QUERIES

Would You Say "Ain't?"

Don't do it.

Ralph Falcone has written "The Right Word," asking whether "it is permissible at any time to use the word ain't."

Never use the word. The man or woman who makes a practice of using ain't is subject to being classed as an illiterate.

"If You Were Me"

Miss Louise Mabis has asked "which of the following is correct:

"'If you were me'

"'If you were I'"

"If you were I" is correct.

What Does Knowledge Justify?

What does it justify in the following sentence submitted by J. T. Keller: ". . . unless, of course, there are circumstances of which we have no knowledge that would justify them declining the liability"? Mr. Keller asks "if the word their should be substituted for them."

Yes. Their is the right word. The following should make the reason for this change clear: that (knowledge) would justify declining the liability. Whose declining? Their declining the liability.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

The frog sat on the bank.
And jumped occasionally into the pool.
As frogs will do.
And as long as they do not jump too far and the water is there to receive them, the frogs do not suffer.

Indeed, it seems to afford them a kind of pleasure.

And it is their means of escaping danger.

* * *

So the particular frog of which we speak was lying on a log.

And jumping occasionally into the pool.

With a graceful swish and splash.

And he was as much at home in the water as he was on the log.

* * *

It was a sunny day.

And many of the creatures of the grass and wood and pool were out.

Creatures of the pool who were able to live and breathe as well in the air.

The fishes of course staid in the water where they belonged.

* * *

An occasional bird of prey strutted up and down the bank.

Watching the logs and the ooze for frogs.

And other animals on which they might feast.

For the business of survival seems to be a business of cunning and caution matched against each other.

* * *

The birds of prey had cunning.
They strode with almost silent tread.
They were gifted with long legs for wading.
And with long bills for gobbling.
And with long necks for swallowing.
And the frogs were forced to hide deep in the ooze out of sight.
Or leap into the water before they were caught.

The particular frog was a big and luscious one.

And very cautious.

And the birds of prey were unable to catch him napping.

Splash!

Into the water he went and disappeared.

* * *

And as he came to the surface cautiously he heard two birds talking together.

And one of them said:

"What a majestic and graceful frog! What leg muscles he has! What a jumper he is! I'll wager he could jump from the high bank up there right down to the shore here!"

* * *

And the frog heard.

And he swelled with pride and vanity.

His legs stretched out at great length.

And he knew he was such a frog as the bird had said.

And after a time the birds disappeared.

But the words of the bird remained in the mind of the frog.

* * *

Up he crawled.

Up the bank and over the rocks and to the very top.

Where he poised.

Looked down at the water.

And the rocky shore.

With his mind swollen with vanity.

* * *

Carefully he measured the distance.

And then with a great push of his long legs he jumped.

And alighted short of the water upon the rocks.

Where he lay bruised, gasping, and helpless.

And the birds reappeared suddenly.

And gobbled him up.

* * *

They could not have destroyed him.

But they made use of his vanity to make him destroy himself.

Songs of the Poets

The Tree—By Jones Very (1813-1880)

I love thee when thy swelling buds appear,
And one by one their tender leaves unfold,
As if they knew that warmer suns were near,
Nor longer sought to hide from winter's cold;
And when with darker growth thy leaves are seen
To veil from view the early robin's nest,
I love to lie beneath thy waving screen,
With limbs by summer's heat and toil oppressed;
And when the autumn winds have stripped thee bare,
And round thee lies the smooth, untrodden snow,
When naught is thine that made thee once so fair,
I love to watch thy shadowy form below,
And through thy leafless arms to look above
On stars that brighter beam when most we need their love.

MINNOWS DESTROY POPULARITY

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Years ago when girls contemplating marriage laid in a supply of clothes sufficient to last a life time, a bride of my acquaintance ran up such an altitudinous trousseau bill that she was afraid to show it to her father.

A friend was chosen as mediator between the gruff old man and his clothes loving daughter. The friend mentioned the subject—coughed—hesitated and got as far as "and—er—er—" when the old gentleman cut in with:

"Out with it and be done. I'd rather be swallowed by a whale than nibbled to death by minnows."

Wise old man. He took his shock at one sitting and saved himself the misery of fear and uncertainty.

But this is only to call attention to the fact that the minnows can gnaw to death friendship and love as well as an income. People with big faults can and often do command love that is sincere and lasting; but an agglomeration of small failings almost certainly dooms one to isolation and loneliness. For one thing, few people are brave enough to discuss small faults with their friends, assuming that it is mean to notice petty failings. Again, it is easier by far to exert character against a well defined, palpable enemy than against a number of trifling habits that annoy others but taken alone seem incapable of influencing destiny.

A rasping voice plus a theory that original sin, the flood, the European war, the anti-Japanese complex, free love, high tariffs and jazz music all come from cigaret smoking, can break a friendship or crack a marriage in two far quicker than liquor and cards together can produce the same results.

The fixed habit of calling on friends and leaving your things behind to be later looked up and mailed to you will reduce your visiting list with greater rapidity than a quick temper. A missionary tendency to lecture your acquaintances on the wickedness of playing golf Sundays instead of going to church is more fatal to amity than a failure to meet your bills regularly.

A woman of my acquaintance is left out of many gatherings because whenever two or three are gathered together and the hostess serves coffee this unwise virgin expresses her natural dislike of coffee by lecturing coffee lovers on its destructive effects.

I even know one marriage that came close to destruction on account of the husband's desire to have the house securely locked at night. He simply could not retire without himself inspecting the locks, which enraged his wife, a careful woman and one given to truth. She resented his actions as a personal reflection on her.

The list could be enlarged indefinitely; but what has been said is sufficient to direct attention to a fact that, though generally known is tacitly ignored. It is worth a period of reflection to those who desire friends.

Beware of the minnows.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

STAIN ON THE SENATE

[Lowell Courier-Citizen]

Disgraceful seems to be the only appropriate word for the tactics of some of the senators in opening the debate on the debt settlement. The essence of the refunding problem is explained elsewhere—but it may be added here that the amendment of the interest rate to only 3 or 3½ per cent means a financial loss to the United States, which borrowed this same money from its own people to loan to England at 4½ per cent—and that this discrepancy is what such critical opponents as McKellar and Heflin call a "subsidy" to England. Of course this view of it is nonsense. It isn't a subsidy. It is, however, a scaling down, to our own considerable cost; and the justification for it is that it has to be done if we are to get anything certainly. It is a long way short of cancelling the whole interest charge—as many responsible American bankers have recommended; and, of course, it is much farther short of cancelling both principal and interest. It doesn't suit such men as McKellar and Heflin, however, and they are free with dirty insinuations calculated to impugn the probity and uprightness of even the chief justice of our highest court! That is the disgrace of it—throwing a barroom insult around like that. Is it any wonder one is forever having to apologize for the American senate?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The late Bourke Cockran had a brilliant career, and he flashed out of life on the instant. An hour before the spirit fled, Cockran had been the center of a happy group, gathered to pay him honor. It was his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary. Doubtless the present seemed serene, and the future to have all its old promise.

HENRY JAMES

Cockran was a man of decided opinions, a readiness to defend them. Some of his views were such that the majority could not coincide with him, but he was honest in them. Many a time had he fought for them. He had the rare and vanishing gift of real eloquence. Not only could he marshal his facts and arguments in orderly array, but present them clothed in beauty of phrase; in persuasive tones likely to sway the opinions of hearers who, addressed in matter-of-fact fashion, might not have been deeply impressed.

Possibly nobody thought of Cockran as a great man. Nevertheless the Irish immigrant who in the land of his choice, was able to rise to the distinction of being known from coast to coast, must have had far more than ordinary ability.

Not reckoned old, as age now is considered, Cockran had had a long, a busy and a full life. He went out of it without any period of decline, to the last devoted to his principles, able to maintain them, and to the last holding secure the prize of many friendships.

Showers are erratic exhibitions staged by the elements in jocular spirit. While rain may be pouring at Altadena, Pasadena may be getting a drizzle, and Los Angeles basking in the sun.

When the citizen's garden has been soaked, he looks into the next paper to see what the official rainfall has been, and observes with surprise that the drops danced merrily into the neighborhood of the rain gauge, and never touched it.

In an eastern resort a girl is said to have indulged in a game of strip poker, an amusement ordinarily attributed to drunken degenerates. This player seems to have been out of her class. Having been a loser, she retired into the next room and shot herself.

There is a probability that the episode ended the game, and its general influence should be against this form of diversion.

The Rev. Bob Shuler has been trying to have Hollywood officially investigated "to the end that the truth may be known." His plan was turned down by the city attorney.

Well, no matter. From the tenor of the Shuler preachments on the subject, the public has a right to infer that he knows all the truth there is touching the subject.

On the part of newspaper men, as well as all the public that knows him, the retirement of Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi will be regretted.

Mr. Williams is a gentleman in the fine sense of the term, and a scholar of high accomplishment. It is not a reflection on the senate to say that it contains few, and perhaps none, of his intellectual calibre.

The experiment of placing a flock of motor busses in Pasadena will be watched with interest by the people of every city. There is no city in which the problem of transportation is not more or less acute, depending upon size, width of streets, and the rapidity of municipal growth.

Often the prediction has been made that the street car soon was to be a thing of the past. Many who have heard this, observing the general use of street cars despite the automobile, have scouted the idea. Perhaps the outcome of the Pasadena experiment will throw considerable light on the matter.

That man has existed on this globe for a long time is no longer to be disputed with authority. The length of the period is in doubt. Some scientists are content with the theory that human life was first manifest half a million years ago. Others hold that three millions is indicated by recently discovered fossil remains.

The discrepancy is not vital. Even half a million years is a long time, affording considerable opportunity for [illegible] of a race, once the start was given.

A husband seeks alimony in the courts of [illegible] county. This is a novel, and possibly unique reversal of form. The custom is for the lady to hold out her hand, palm up, and for the party of the other part to drop into it, reluctantly, such sum as stipulated by an unbiased judge.

In the case under consideration it appears that the wife has money and health, neither of which the husband possesses. In addition to this, she is said to be nineteen years his senior. That ought to settle it. A woman who would marry a youngster instead of taking a motherly interest in him, ought to be fined. It is not satisfactory, however, to think that the husband, partner in foolishness, would get the money.

If wifie were mulcted in the sum represented by substantial alimony, and then the sum turned over to an orphan asylum, the outcome would be ideal.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN DILGRIM

Poor old Harry Meredith came in this morning. I knew what had happened the moment I saw his face. The boy had blown up again. Harry always comes in and tells me about it before he goes home on these occasions. Sort of rehearses the little tragedy.

"I'm afraid he's no good," said Harry, dejectedly.

"You're a fat-head," I said, rudely. "The boy's all right. But he's too dern fresh. He will not amount to anything until he has had that galvanized gall knocked out of him."

The boy has been spoiled all his life by a father and mother and an adoring sister. When I was twenty-four years old—not to brag about myself nearly as much as I'd like to—I had been on my own for a couple of years. In strange territory, too. When this boy of Harry's was twenty-four years old he was still checking in at night at the old homestead. They sat up and waited for him. When the boy got home they put out the cat and wound the clock and went to bed. Not until.

He is handsome, energetic—oh, impossibly energetic—and intelligent. But he is too fresh. He has been the center of a domestic universe so long that he is over-persuaded about himself. He got a lot of new business when he took his first job, but he lost enough stanch, standby customers to make up for it. His ideas were excellent but they were not ukases or edicts. The people who bought from him were not obligated to obey.

"He has lost job after job," worried poor old Henry.

"And every time he comes home to be kissed and coddled," I said. "Just as you did when he was being thrown out of schools. You have been too soft with him. Much of this is your fault. Part of the rest of it is your wife's fault. All the rest belongs to the brat."

If I could manage to have him shanghaied I'd sign him on with the navy. That would make a man of him.

CHURCH LIFE IN GLENDALE SEEN DAY BY DAY

Detailed Stories of the Upbuilding of Strong Organizations

The twelve months' history of organized religion in Glendale is one of earnest, broad-guaged building, under the inspiration of strong leaders and ministers working together in the brotherhood of Christian thought and endeavor.

Segregated into stories of individual effort, the accounts follow:

Glendale Presbyterian Church

The center of interest for the Glendale Presbyterian church is the new church building at Louise and Harvard, for which ground was broken on Sunday, April 16, 1922, with about 1,000 persons present to view the ceremonies. Since that date the building has gone forward steadily. The cornerstone of the church, which is to cost $300,000, was laid Sunday afternoon, January 1, 1923, in the presence of many witnesses. Dr. John Willis Baer was the speaker; Rev. C. A. Cole represented the local ministerial association; six charter members of the church were present, Mrs. A. M. Ayers, Mrs. Minnie Ayers, Mrs. H. M. Byram, William D. Byram and Mrs. E. B. Banker.

The church sustains many active organizations such as the men's bible class, of which H. C. Retberg was elected president, and Keith L. Brooks re-elected teacher, January 6, 1923.

At the annual meeting of the women's societies of the church, held February 20, 1923, officers were chosen as follows: President of women's department, Mrs. J. A. Newton; president of the missionary department, Mrs. John McDill; president of pastor's aid department, Mrs. J. J. Davis.

In November, a women's weekday Bible class, to meet Thursday mornings, was established, with Mrs. A. L. Dennis of Los Angeles as leader.

The Lydia class of women, which has been led by Mrs. J. P. Thompson, its president, is another active group.

A very successful vacation Bible school, attended by 125 children, was conducted during the summer of 1922 by Miss Anita Fletcher, principal, and assisting teachers.

One of the popular and growing organizations of the church is the Intermediate Christian Endeavor society, under the leadership of Harold Majors, which held its second annual banquet January 12, 1923. Howard Brown was one of the promoters of this organization.

Early in January, 1923, George D. McDill became executive secretary of the church, succeeding H. L. Finley, resigned.

January 5, 1923, a Church brotherhood was organized and officers elected as follows: President, C. F. Snyder; first vice-president, J. E. Sargent; second vice-president, John Swearengen; secretary, Ellsworth Kinney; treasurer, A. B. Clapp.

December 17, 1922, Rev. W. E. Edmonds celebrated the beginning of his twelfth year as pastor of the church at a Sunday morning service.

Holy Family Catholic Church

The new $7,500 organ in the Holy Family church was used publicly for the first time March 26, 1922. It was manipulated by Harry Girard.

The twentieth anniversary of his service in Glendale was celebrated by Rev. James S. O'Neill, pastor of the Holy Family church, on June 5. The anniversary was marked by a church party in the I. O. O. F. hall.

The big event of the year for the Holy Family Catholic church was the dedication September 24, 1922, of its house of worship at the corner of Louise and Elk avenue. The service, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, was attended by about 2,000 persons, the dedication being made by the Right Reverend John Joseph Cantwell, bishop of the diocese of San Diego and Los Angeles, assisted by Father Kirk of St. Basil's church, Los Angeles, and Edward J. Whalen, organist and choir master of St. Basil's. First came the dedication outside, then the vesper service and benediction inside the church. A brief sermon was preached by Father Kirk. Following the dedication a dinner in honor of the bishop and officiating priests was served to 250 at 6 o'clock, at the Chamber of Commerce hall, of which John Stephen McGroarty was toastmaster and at which speeches were made by Mayor Robinson, Judge Paul McCormick, Joseph Scott and Bishop Cantwell.

About the first of October, 1922, was completed the parish house, built just west of the church, at a cost of about $17,000, the foundation of which had been laid March 15, 1922. It was occupied by Father O'Neill when the new church was dedicated. About ten days later, by instruction of the bishop, Father O'Neill made a trip to Honolulu for rest and change.

November 23, 1922, ground was broken for a sisters' school to be located on Louise street, opposite the church, between Lomita and Elk. The announced cost of the building was $50,000, but up to this time the school has not been built.

Beginning December 3, 1922, a Jesuit Mission was conducted for nearly three weeks by Father Patrick O'Reilly of Portland, Ore.

About the time the new church was dedicated the local council of the Knights of Columbus purchased for clubhouse purposes the property of Mrs. Dora Glazier, at 330 East Lomita, building thereon an auditorium seating several hundred people. Since that was completed it has been a social center for the church and for its entertainments, money-making and otherwise. Harry Girard is the grand knight of the organization, which is growing rapidly.

Father Patrick Curran of San Bernardino, about the middle of February, 1923, was called to act as assistant pastor of the church.

Central Christian Church

The Central Christian church had a unique experience in the history of churches when, on July 2, 1922, its beautiful new building at the corner of Louise and Colorado was dedicated by Rev. George L. Snively, free of debt.

The cost of the church was $85,000. When it was begun, $20,000 in pledges and cash had been secured, leaving a balance of $65,000. On the morning of dedication $75,000 was pledged, or enough over and above the cost of the edifice to pay for a fine pipe organ. The total cost was not far from $100,000. The dedicatory services were held at night, when Floyd Mercer, chairman of the building committee, turned over the keys of the church to W. B. Kirk, representing the church trustees. Rev. C. M. Calderwood, president of the Ministerial association, presented the felicitations of other Glendale churches, an address was made by Rev. John H. Le Grand, and 25 new members were received into the church. Fine musical programs, arranged by Mrs. Calvin Whiting, director of the choir, marked all the services of the day.

Rev. Le Grand, assisted by the singing revivalist, Professor Howe, conducted revival meetings which were largely attended, for two weeks following the dedication.

Later in the year, about the 12th of November, another series of revival meetings, which lasted three weeks, was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Clifford Cole, with the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Conner, chorus director and pianiste, and their daughter, Helen Conner Nern, contralto soloist.

September 29, 1922, Sunday school commencement exercises were held in the church, and 50 pupils received diplomas.

The quarterly gathering of the Sunday School Workers' conference was held September 18, with about 50 present.

September 4, 1922, the annual church picnic was held at Brookside park.

The union Thanksgiving service of Glendale churches was held in the Christian church, Rev. Louis Tinning presiding and Rev. James F. Winnard delivering the address.

A convention of Christian churches was held the 9th of September, 1922, which was attended by many state workers.

September 24, 1922, the first quarterly assembly of all classes in the Sunday school was held under direction of Superintendent Floyd Mercer.

The annual meeting of the church was held Sunday evening, December 31, 1922, when there was a roll call of the 600 members, reports and election of officers, and miscellaneous program, lasting until the new year came in.

January 26, 1923, a reception was held to welcome the 168 new members who had united with the church during the year.

December 8, 1922, the Missionary Social Union, composed of various Christian churches in and around Los Angeles, was entertained by the local church, about 200 delegates being present.

January 17, 1923, the men's Bible class started a drive to bring its membership to 100.

Excellent records have been made during the year by the Ladies' Aid society of the church, which meets every Thursday; by the Loyal Women's Bible class, and by the Live Cole class.

First Congregational Church

An event of considerable historic interest was the supper held in the little brown Congregational church building May 12, 1922, the last church function held there, as the building had been sold to E. D. Yard and was by him removed in a short time to make way for the beautiful new church since built, at a cost of approximately $80,000.

The cornerstone was laid July 30, 1922, in the presence of about 800 interested spectators. Rev. George F. Kengott made the main address of the afternoon, and Rev. C. M. Crist, representing the Ministerial association, presented the congratulations of other local churches. Rev. E. H. Willisford, founder of the church and its pastor for many years, was a guest, and the present pastor, Rev. C. M. Calderwood, participated in the ceremonies.

January 10, 1923, the basement of the church was given its christening, when it was used for the annual meeting when reports were received and officers were elected. From that time church services were held in the basement until the edifice was completed and dedicated Sunday, February 25, 1923.

The sermon of dedication at the afternoon service was preached by Dr. Daniel F. Fox of Pasadena. Rev. Wilson J. Marsh of Yorba Linda, a former pastor, made the dedicatory prayer; greetings from local churches were presented by Rev. Henry Rasmus of the First Methodist church, and congratulations were tendered by representatives of other Congregational churches throughout the district. A fine musical program was presented at the three services of the day, and $38,000 was subscribed toward the church debt.

At a meeting of the very active Women's auxiliary of the church, held January 11, 1923, newly elected officers were installed as follows: President, Mrs. Peter Hanson; vice-president, Mrs. Lauderdale; secretary, Mrs. L. T. Rowley; treasurer, Mrs. A. H. Chapman.

Tropico Presbyterian Church

At the annual meeting of the Tropico Presbyterian church, held March 29, it was decided to call Dr. James F. Winnard to the pastorate of that organization. Dr. Winnard was formerly pastor of the Mt. Washington Presbyterian church of Los Angeles.

He occupied the pulpit for the first time April 9, the theme of his morning discourse being: "In the Name of Our God We Will Set up Our Banner."

Among events of special interest to the church were the revival meetings conducted by Rev. and Mrs. H. P. Dunlop for about three weeks, beginning November 19, 1922.

The annual church picnic was held August 26 at Brookside Park.

Early in the present year a women's Bible class was organized, which now has a membership of 25. Mrs. O. W. Esselman is president. It holds monthly meetings at the homes of members to sew for the needy.

An important organization is the Men's club, of which Sam Brown was elected president; William Malcolm, vice-president, and Leo D. Hyer, secretary-treasurer, at a meeting held January 5, 1923. The Ladies' Aid of this church is also an active organization.

Central Avenue Methodist Church

The annual conference for Methodist churches of Southern California returned as pastor to the Central Avenue Methodist church of this city, Rev. V. Hunter Brink, who has very satisfactorily served it. The work of the church has gone forward as usual during the past year, with no special features, but all departments of the church alive and interested.

Christian and Missionary Alliance

Rev. George W. Davis, who had been serving the Christian and Missionary Alliance as pastor, having resigned it, a farewell reception was given him September 19, 1922, at the home of Dr. L. C. Richardson, 1856 South Brand boulevard, and it was also a welcome to the new pastor, Rev. H. C. Chrisman, who came to Glendale from Spokane, where he had charge of a church of the same denomination for 10 years. About the middle of September, 1922, the Alliance purchased as a parsonage for the use of its pastor, a residence at 304 East Chestnut street. The Alliance is now erecting a handsome new building of concrete and hollow tile at the corner of Louise and Chestnut. The old building was moved from its location at 319 East Chestnut to serve as an annex.

Interdenominational Church Fellowship

During the past year quite an interdenominational fellowship has been observed in the churches of Glendale.

The Interdenominational Bible class, which meets every Wednesday morning at the home of the teacher, Mrs. J. Rhea Baker, has established itself on a firm basis. At the annual business meeting held February 1, 1923, annual reports were received which showed that over $250 had been contributed and dispensed by the class for missionary and other work, and officers were elected as follows: Mrs. E. R. Hamilton, president; Mrs. J. E. Henderson, vice-president; Mrs. Glen B. Porter, secretary; Mrs. Harry Korb, assistant secretary; Mrs. J. F. Johannsen, treasurer; Mrs. H. B. Todd, reporter.

All the churches represented in the Ministerial association of Glendale sent delegates to a meeting held February 14 at the Christian church to plan a common program for pre-Easter services.

February 18 a day of prayer was held by the combined missionary societies of Glendale and the local W. C. T. U. at the Baptist church.

First Lutheran Church

The annual congregational meeting of the First Lutheran church, held January 10, 1923, showed that the previous year had been the banner one in the history of the church, 109 adults and 21 children having been received into the church. Officers elected for a term of two years were: H. A. Stolper and Paul Hoffman, deacons and trustees; T. M. Zelander and O. J. Sherrick, elders; J. H. Niebank, superintendent of the Church school. Dr. H. C. Funk has served the church as pastor for two years.

Sunday, July 23, 1922, the fifth anniversary of the dedication of the church was celebrated with a special service.

During the summer a new church location was purchased, consisting of two large lots on Kenwood, near Colorado. The sale of the property now occupied at Maryland and Harvard has been reported from time to time, but has not been officially confirmed.

New Churches

Several new churches, or the beginnings of new denominations, have been established during the year. Among these may be mentioned:

Jewish Sunday School

A Jewish Sunday school established through the activity of Mrs. C. L. Vierick, which has been meeting for several weeks at Odd Fellows' hall, but which expects to be transferred to the Tuesday Afternoon club house about the 18th of March.

Community Sunday School

February 5, 1923, a Community Sunday school was opened in Grand View at the home of Mrs. M. B. Buckman, 1141 Winchester avenue, with an excellent attendance. It will be continued there until able to afford a home of its own.

Church of the Nazarene

Following revival services which were held in a tent on Glendale avenue, near Broadway, during September and October, 1922, by Evangelist E. A. Clark, a Church of the Nazarene was organized in Glendale January 5, 1923, by Rev. J. E. Bates, district superintendent, who was assisted by Rev. Henry Scheideman. There were 31 charter members. On January 15 boards of trustees and stewards were elected, the trustees being: L. E. Swaney, Cal Taylor and Robert Snyder. Mrs. Mary Ruis was elected secretary, and Mrs. Nora Taylor, treasurer. Rev. Henry Scheideman was called to the pastorate. Stewards elected were Elmer Heck, Mrs. Mary Ruis, W. H. Crumpler, Mrs. Sill and Mrs. Nora Taylor. Church services are held at 1002 South Glendale avenue.

Methodist Church South

The Glendale Presbyterian church has sold its building at the corner of Cedar and Broadway, to be used for a Methodist Church South, the new denomination being organized December 10, 1922, by Rev. D. M. Barr, who had been appointed its pastor, and who had arrived in Glendale November 10 and at once begun the work he was sent to do. The initial service was held at 2 p. m., and the sermon preached by Rev. Shuler, the pastor read the names of those who had united with the church, representing about 20 families. It is expected that by Easter the church will have an enrollment of 100 charter members.

IMMIGRATION AND HOUSING REPORT TO GOVERNOR

Work of State Commission for 1922 Is Detailed

The ninth annual report of the commission of immigration and housing, recently handed Governor Richardson, gives a comprehensive survey of its activities during the nine years of its existence, as well as the work accomplished by its various departments during the first 10 months of 1922.

Statistics for the period from January to November 1st, 1922, show that the labor camp sanitation department, in enforcing the labor camp sanitation Act, inspected 1,710 labor camps, covering every industry throughout the state, in which 29 different nationalities aggregating a total population of 79,626 were found to be living. Since 1924 the department has inspected 12,570 camps, in which 465,838 persons were housed. Through its efforts labor camps have been made fit places for human habitation, and its history for less than nine years has been a history of continuous progress and constructive accomplishment.

Assisted by efficient and intelligent cooperation on the part of local authorities, the commission's housing department has gone far in the elimination of vicious housing conditions existing in practically all of our cities. There still remains much to be done in this direction, but the results of past activities augur well for future efforts, and the commission looks to the not far distant day when California can point with pride to the housing conditions of her cities. To this end a bill, resulting from the deliberations of housing experts, meeting in two institutes called by the commission, has been introduced by Senator Inman at the present session of the legislature. This bill modifies the existing state housing laws to meet conditions which have arisen since their enactment in 1917. Another advance in housing legislation is contemplated by the commission in a bill, now before the legislature, which calls for state assistance to home builders with small incomes.

The statistics of the complaint department, the real point of contact between the alien and the state, show that more than 38,000 immigrants have called upon it for assistance in settling difficulties of every nature. Of this number 3,000 such petitions were heard and adjusted from January 1 to November 1, 1922. Persons representing over fifty different nationalities have been aided by the complaint department during the past year, and a conservative estimate of the amount of money saved the state in the cost of jury trials arising out of these troubles, would exceed $25,000. This figure does not consider the cost saved the parties themselves, which probably is beyond calculation. The commission is rapidly assuring the immigrant that he will receive the "square deal" he is entitled to and which, prior to the creation of the commission, he was not getting.

Until the commission came into being there was practically no state recognition given to the important and necessary activity of the teaching of English to the foreign-born. Save in isolated instances there was no acknowledgement that the state had the problem of the immigrant who could not speak English. Now the fact is universally recognized, the field surveyed and the State Board of Education has added to its activities a new and important one, the department of immigrant education. Practical experiments, progressive legislation and a tireless campaign to awaken public interest and enlist public sentiment—all this on the part of the commission—made the move possible.

The 1920 census shows that approximately 50 per cent of the total population of the state is comprised of 805,000 foreign-born and 910,000 native-born of foreign parentage. The report shows clearly the handicaps of the immigrant, the necessity for the removal of these handicaps, and the manner in which the commission is slowly but surely removing them, all to the end that the immigrant, potential citizen of today, may be the wide-awake understanding citizen of tomorrow.

DOG SAVES ITS MISTRESS'S LIFE

ELY, Nevada, March 6, (A. P.)—The story of a dog that refused to let his mistress sleep, and thereby saved her life, has been revealed as one of the almost tragic incidents growing out of the recent heavy snowstorms here. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dugan, residents near here, were caught in the hills 12 miles from here while driving to Ely recently. The roads became impassable and the couple, accompanied by a dog, started to walk to a telephone station to call for help.

They walked for an entire day and on arriving at the telephone station, found the line out of order. They were unable to start a fire because of the lack of dry matches, and again started to walk, hoping to reach Ely. The snow was above the man's waist.

Mrs. Dugan gave out and was left behind, wrapped in her husband's overcoat, with the dog inside of it to keep her warm. Mr. Dugan reached this city after daylight of the third morning, having taken 11 hours to walk the last five miles. He was barely able to explain what had happened. Rescue parties found the woman alive, with her feet badly frozen. She said that when she grew drowsy, the dog would bark and pull at her clothing. Sleep, the doctors stated, would have been fatal.

Reputation is sometimes more valuable than character.

CAISSON DISEASE ATTACKS EXPERT DIVER

MANILA, P. I., March 6, (A. P.)—Frank Albert Fox, expert diver on the destroyer Pope, attached to the Asiatic fleet, met death here recently from "caisson-disease," which is caused by too heavy a pressure on the body.

The Pope at practice fired a torpedo which stuck in the mud at the bottom of Manila bay, and Fox was sent down to release it. He wore only a bathing suit and an air helmet. The helmet attached to the shoulders protects the diver from the water, air being forced through the top from pumps on the destroyer.

Divers usually wear suits covering the body, but the great weight of these suits prevents the diver from working with freedom.

Fox found the torpedo at a depth of 120 feet and had risen to the 60-foot level when his helmet came off, causing him to shoot suddenly to the surface.

He was lifted from the water by his fellow sailors, who at once placed him in a diving suit and lowered him back to the 60-foot level in order to restore his body to normal. In the meantime a submarine went to his aid and after it was found that the diver failed to revive at the 60-foot level, took him into the torpedo room, where varying pressure was used in an effort to bring his body back to normal.

He was kept in the air chamber under heavy pressure for nearly six hours, but the sudden change in pressure on the body had been too great, and he died.

Naval officers said it never would be known whether the helmet accidentally slipped off or whether Fox, believing he was near the surface, removed it.

Fox enlisted in St. Louis in May, 1922, and has been in diving work since he was assigned to the destroyer fleet. He was 27 years old and gave his home as Scranton, Penn.

A SUICIDE AT 103

PARIS (United Press).—Finding life rather dreary and with little more to look forward to, Elena Jovanavitch, of Temesvar, Hungary, hanged herself at the age of 103. She rose at 6 a. m., dressed herself all in white, ate a hearty breakfast, carefully measured the required height on a wall, drove a heavy nail into it, adjusted a rope and kicked a chair from under her feet.

BERLIN BURNING HER DEAD

BERLIN (United Press). — It costs less to be burned than to be buried in Germany—hence 35 per cent of the dead of Berlin are now being cremated. Already the bodies of more than 200,000 Germans have been reduced to ashes in the various crematories. The bigger crematories of Berlin today are working twenty-four hours daily, in eight-hour shifts.
